

Ashley York

BOWEN ISLAND, BC – June 21, 2008 -- Ashley York, a unique boutique featuring products that are hard-to-find, often handcrafted, and always surprising, is now online.

“We’re calling it a place for people with more taste than time”, says owner Tia McHale, a mother of two toddlers, who found that online shopping could solve her time crunch in a truly practical way.

In a recent review – Yoyomama.ca – the trend- watching website for busy mothers -- called shopashleyyork.com “the kind of store that makes it hard for us to keep our resolve … and not collect so much stuff”.

True that. And while we try to be as much about reducing as collecting -- reducing our carbon footprint where we can -- we also recognize the need for a place where busy mothers can shop around the clock. And find much of what they’re looking for in one place.

How about a fashion- forward purse made from recycled leather? Gorgeous.

How about modern styled children’s furniture built with sustainable materials in an environmentally responsible way? About time.

And how about jeans that can accommodate any body type and offer the ultimate in slimming style?

Ashley York.
